

A successful single mother living in Atlanta, Georgia, Chloe began to invest in real estate to supplement her pension. She would spend her leisure time at her beach property on Florida's beautiful coast and her ski-in-ski-out condominium near Yellowstone. The good times with old friends and family awaited back home in Wyoming—or so she thought.

As she literally watched her new ski condo go up in smoke, she knew her future was about to change. How could this have happened to the unsuspecting buyers? Who was to blame for this tragic fire that nearly ended her life?

Now a city girl with a southern accent, she was an outsider in her own home state. Her journey of self-discovery is deeply emotional, spiritual, and often humorous. With a unique voice and perspective, this story is a compelling drama with characters that will stay in readers' heads.
